THE LINCOLN HIGHWAY

PATH FROM OCEAN TO OCEAN PLAINLY MARKED, READY FOR MOTORISTS

The Lincoln highway, from the eastern seaboard to the Pacific coast, is now open and ready for negotiation by automobiles, with 75 per cent of the total distance thoroughly marked throughout the 3,400 miles.

The Lincoln highway association has made report of the route to San Francisco, but it is said that the southern section running through Arizona to Los Angeles is as far advanced, though not officially inspected as yet. Following is the report of the inspection just made:

"The Lincoln highway has been covered from New York to Oakland and San Francisco in one day. Complete reports from the many drivers who took part in the great cross-country run indicate that not a foot of the way, except where actual road construction made driving impossible, was left uninspected by official Lincoln highway representatives on Friday. The Lincoln Highway association has settled by one great demonstration the question of whether or not the route will soon be ready for tourists.

"More than 200 Lincoln highway consuls and officially appointed drivers took part in the run. Each man started at a given point and drove over the Lincoln highway to the next point west and return, observing the condition of the road, the number of markers for the guidance of the tourist and the work in progres. This information along with the weather conditions prevailing and the mileage covered was wired to the headquarters of the association at Detroit, where it will be compiled for the use of transcontinental tourists.

"On the morning after the run more than one hundred wires were received from as many points along the cross-country trail. Messages were received from every state crossed by the highway, and from some of the states, where long mileages and many cities and towns made the subdivision of the task necessary, from twelve to twenty wires were received.

"The reports indicated that more than 75 per cent of the total distance is thoroughly marked, "thoroughly" indicating one marker every eighth of a mile. No tourist could lose his bearings on such a road.

"The reports showed a wide range of temperature. Many sections in the West, and particularly at high altitudes, were driven in a cold mist and with some wind, the temperature being freezing. Other sections reported warm and clear.

"Every kind of road was negotiated, from the macadam boulevards of New Jersey and Pensylvania, the cement and brick stretches of Indiana and Ohio to the smooth, hard, well-dragged mud roads of Nebraska, the prairie stretches of Wyoming, the desert flats of Utah and Nebraska, and the good roads through the mountains and valleys of California.

" 'The reports of our drivers, all men of unquestioned veracity, settle for all time the question of a thorough transcontinental road,' said A. R. Pardington, vice-president of the Lincoln Highway association. 'The Lincoln highway can no longer be referred to as a "proposed" route; it is there, it is open, for 3,400 miles. We have settled the question of where to drive next year for thousands of tourists.' "

GLENDALE & MONTROSE CO. ASK TO INCREASE FARES

Yesterday, State Railroad Commissioner Loveland heard the application of the Glendale & Montrose Railway company asking to increase the capital stock of the company from $25,000 to $250,000 and also to increase fares.

Arguing that the investment is sufficient to justify the proposed increase in capital stock, the Glendale & Montrose railway submitted evidence showing that construction costs to June 30, 1914, had been $128,088, and that the line had been thoroughly rehabilitated since that time. It is proposed that stock, up to the value of all investments, shall be issued to J. Frank Walter, the president, who owns all but two shares of the outstanding issue, and who also advanced $81,457 in cash for improvements.

Under the proposed rate-advance, the one-way fare from La Crescenta to Broadway and Brand boulevard, Glendale, will be 15 cents, instead of the present 10 cents; the round-trip rate will be raised from 15 cents to 25 cents, and other minor advances in rates made between different points on the line. The service performed is alleged to justify such advances.

The weather gods are giving the region east of the Rockies a dispensation of climate that is not suggestive of heaven.

SHOW CLASS SPIRIT

GRADUATING CLASS OF INTERMEDIATE SCHOOL TO GIVE A BIG BENEFIT

The graduating class of the Intermediate school are displaying commendable enterprise and class spirit in the big benefit entertainment they are planning to give at the Majestic theater tomorrow evening. The proceeds of the affair are to be used in defraying the graduation expenses of the class.

There will be a big parade in the afternoon starting from the Intermediate school promptly at 4 o'clock. All the participants of the parade will be in fancy dress, many of them depicting the characters in the film plays to be shown later in the evening. Others will be garbed in humorous or historical costumes. The parade promises to be something unusual and delightful as well.

Early in the evening the band of the Whittier state school will give a street concert and this organization will also furnish music between the reels. This band is considered by eminent musicians to be one of the finest bands of any institution in the state. The boys are donating their services in appreciation of the class spirit shown by the class of '15 of the Intermediate school.

The evening performances begin at promptly 7 and 8:30 and the members of the class are showing considerable push and energy in selling tickets for this event at the low price of five and ten cents each for children and adults respectively. Tickets will also be on sale at the door. The general public is showing a live interest in this affair.

YOUNG COOKS ENTERTAIN

The girls of the A-8th grade of the Intermediate school under the direction of their instructor in Domestic Science, Miss Wooldridge, entertained the members of the board in a most royal manner at a dinner on Tuesday evening. All of the forty members of the class helped in some way in the planning and preparing of the dinner, while the twelve girls who had the highest grades were chosen to do the serving.

The dinner was served in the Domestic Science room which had been decked in festal array for the occasion and the table was perfect in its appointments. The color scheme of pink and white was very dainty and inviting, the pink and white roses, Shasta daisies and ferns forming a most beautiful combination. The nut baskets, pink candle shades in the form of roses and place cards were all hand made by the girls and continued the color scheme. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Eckles, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Heacock, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Brockman, members of the board, and Prof. Richardson D. White, principal of the school, and Mrs. White. Mr. and Mrs. Todd were unable to be present.

The excellent dinner so daintily served proved these girls true artists. The menu was as follows: Fruit cocktail, bisque timbal with tomato sauce, roast chicken and dressing, potatoes maitre de hotel, peas in pate cases, tomatoe jelly salad with cheese straws, strawberry mousse, sponge cake with pink and white icing, cafe noir and mints.

ST. MARGARET CARD PARTY

The beautiful new home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Peckham, 245 North Central avenue, was the scene of a very happy affair Wednesday evening when the ladies of St. Margaret's Guild of St. Mark's Episcopal church gave the second of a series of card parties which they have planned for this season.

There were quantities of roses used to decorate the rooms and the evening was spent with cards, Mrs. J. L. Flint and Mr. Jos. L. Stagner winning the prizes for highest score. Dainty refreshments added to the evening's pleasure.

The next party of the series will be held in two weeks at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Flint, 142 South Central avenue.

DAUGHTERS OF CONFEDERACY

SAN DIEGO, April 29.—The San Diego exposition will see a big gathering of well-known women of California when the United Daughters of the Confederacy hold a state convention here May 5, 6 and 7. After the routine business of the convention is concluded, the visiting women will be entertained by the Stonewall Jackson chapter of San Diego. Receptions, dinners and auto rides are on the program. The reception to be tendered the delegates in the exquisite women's headquarters of the California building is expected to be one of the biggest social affairs during exposition year.

WATER RATES TO BE REDUCED

With Purchase of Verdugo Springs Co. and Verdugo Pipe and Reservoir Co., All Glendale Water Systems Now Municipally Owned

In the taking over of the water systems by the city of Glendale is occurring one of the most important events in the history of the city. Municipal ownership of water, light and gas, when properly managed, is one of the greatest assets that a city may possess. As is made clear in the following, the taking over of the Verdugo Springs and the Verdugo Pipe and Reservoir plants has been delayed on account of inability to dispose of the bonds until just recently. Briefly, we give an account of the taking over by the city of the four water systems:

On October 1st, 1914, the city of Glendale purchased the plants of the Glendale Consolidated Water company and the Miradero Water company for $104,777.94, and immediately began operating the plants. At the same time the water rate was reduced from a minimum charge of $1.25 for 800 cubic feet to a minimum charge of $1 for 800 cubic feet.

The purchase of the Verdugo Springs Water company and the Verdugo Pipe and Reservoir company would have been made at that time but for the fact that the city was unable to dispose of the balance of the bonds, owing to general financial conditions throughout the country.

On the 27th inst. the city purchased the plant of the Verdugo Springs Water company for $51,657.80, and on the 29th inst. the city purchased the plant of the Verdugo Pipe and Reservoir company for $12,923.00. The city will immediately begin operating these two plants.

The number of consumers of each water company at the time of taking over the plants was approximately as follows:

Glendale Consolidated Water Co. and Miradero Water Co.	1700
Verdugo Springs Water Co....	700
Verdugo Pipe & Reservoir Co.	150

At a regular adjourned meeting of the board of trustees held Wednesday evening, April 28th, the water rate in the city of Glendale was reduced to $1 for 1000 cubic feet, the minimum to remain the same. This will be effective May 1st, 1915.

Now that all the water bonds have been sold, necessary improvements will be made.

ARTISTIC WINDOW DECORATIONS

The window trimmer at the Glendale Hardware company deserves much credit for his artistic decorations. At present he has a very beautiful display of miniature live stock and on each animal is displayed a piece of cutlery.

There is nothing that goes to show the wide-awake spirit and enterprise of a store more than a neatly decorated show window.

ENTERTAINS SISTERS

Mrs. William Nichols of Hawthorne street is having the pleasure of entertaining her two sisters, Mrs. W. H. Wagner of Olathe, Kansas, and Mrs. W. H. Baldridge of Escondido, California, who is a delegate to the P. E. O. state convention being held in Alhambra this week.

THE VACANT LOT

PROPERTY OWNERS SHOULD BE COMPELLED TO CARE FOR UNIMPROVED PROPERTY

The progressiveness of a city may often be determined by the condition in which the vacant lots are kept. The subject has been one to which the Glendale Evening News has often referred, and it is one that we will refer to often in the future, as the condition in which lots not improved is kept is of vastly more importance than the average citizen may think.

The main difficulty in caring for vacant lots is that many of the owners live outside of the city. The lot was purchased as a matter of speculation and, as was stated several days since in these columns, the less money spent in the upkeep of the lot, the greater is the profit; so thinks the owner.

This profit scheme may work all right on the part of the owner provided his lot is adjoining property that is improved, but where a group of vacant lots is left in a neglected manner, the property in the locality would not increase in value, so it is the opinion of the Evening News that there should be a law, and that law strictly enforced, giving a city power to keep vacant lots in a neat condition. The keeping of them in good condition would not only add to the valuation of the property in the immediate vicinity, but it would also add to the value of the lots to which the attention is given.

It has been stated that there is a law before the present legislature to the effect that cities will be empowered to take care of vacant lots at the expense of the owners. It is the desire of every citizen who takes pride in the neatness of the city in which he lives, that such a bill may become a law, and that it will eventually be enforced in all cities of the state.

While speaking on this question, it is fair to those who do keep vacant lots in good condition, to give them all due credit for thus keeping them.

JOHN BUNNY, MIGHTY FUNNY, LAUGHING WITH THE ANGELS

We know that the Lord will be merciful to John Bunny. Let us hope that the genial-hearted comedian has found abundant entrance through the portals of the celestial city. Millions have laughed at his grotesque features and his homely antics, portrayed on the screen, the world over. If an inventory could be made of all the carking care that John Bunny has removed from human beings—of all the downcast persons who have been wooed away from their depression—for the time being, at least—if all the tears of sorrow that John Bunny has turned into tears of mirth, could be assembled, the showing would be so generously great that surely the recording angel would look down over the battlements of eternity, take note, and, in charity, blot out any record of sins that may be on the heavenly account-book against John Bunny. Peace to the soul of this man who has given us so many laughs.—Pasadena Star.

MISS FOWLER'S RECITAL

The third Senior recital of the College of Music, U. S. C., took place last evening at the chapel of the university. Miss Blanche Fowler, who assisted the Robbinette club in its recent concert and read so charmingly, is also an accomplished musician. Miss Fowler has finished the course set forth in the college and specialized with Mrs. Norma Rockhold Robbins in voice. Her voice is a beautiful, flexible contralto with considerable range, equal and even, and though her program was a test, she surmounted the difficulties with apparent ease. This is the third pupil of Mrs. Robbins who has completed the course in the college, one in 1913, and one in 1914.

DR. COULTAS TO SPEAK

There will be a very live lecture at the First Methodist church this evening when Dr. Coultas, pastor of the First Methodist church of Whittier and formerly professor in the McKlay school of Theology in Los Angeles, will speak. His subject is "The Parable of the Kingdoms" and his address is based on the thirteenth chapter of Matthew. Dr. Coultas will discuss such questions as whether the kingdom of Christ is here, now or whether we are to expect it later and do we have the gospel of the kingdom now or do we have to wait for Christ's coming for the gospel of the kingdom.

This lecture will be of interest as well as of great helpfulness to all. Everyone is invited to come and no admission is charged. The hour is 7:45.

POSTER CONTEST

SCHOOL CHILDREN WILL COMPETE FOR PRIZES FOR ORIGINAL WORK

The executive committee of the Glendale Festival of Fruits and Flowers have decided to conduct a poster contest. This contest is to be engaged in by the boys and girls in the high school or eligible to be in the high school, and by the boys and girls below the high school. There will therefore be two prizes awarded, one to the high school division, and one to the division below the high school. The prize in each division is $1.00. The conditions of the contest are that the poster must contain the words, "Glendale Festival of Fruits and Flowers," the date of the festival, which is May 27, 28 and 29, and the place, Glendale high school building and grounds. In deciding who has the best poster the judges will take into consideration the following items: Best drawing illustrating fruits and flowers, illustrating the queen, illustrating scene at baby show, illustrating the minstrel program, illustrating scene at cafeteria dinner, illustrating an auto ride in scenic Glendale.

These posters are to be completed and left at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, 106 Orange street, not later than 12 m. Saturday, May 8. Upon this date a booster tea will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jones, to which all are invited.

THE BIG FIESTA

All roads lead to Los Angeles beginning May 1, when all of Southern California will attend the big Rodeo and Fiesta. With wonderful parades, pageants and a big Rodeo, a veritable nine days of pleasure for the residents and visitors of Los Angeles county, mapped out by the 1915 general committee of Los Angeles city and county, will commence Saturday morning.

On that date Queen Sibyl Mather will wave her royal scepter, and through the streets of the city a great pageant will wend its way, carrying with it ancient relics reminiscent of the early development of California. Events of more than half a century will be depicted by the parade, in which will appear prairie schooners, mining outfits, stage coaches, pack trains and real cowgirls and cowboys.

In the evening an electrical pageant, one of the most beautiful ever seen on the Pacific coast, will wind through the streets, commencing at 8 o'clock. The title, "The Story of the Golden West," has been given to the morning parade on account of its historical teachings, by the 1915 general committee.

On Monday morning, May 3, the stupendous floral parade, La Fiesta de las Flores, will be held. Plans for this parade have been under way for months. It will be composed of numerous floats and beautifully decorated automobiles.

On each day, beginning May 1 and ending May 9, the great Rodeo will be held at the stadium, East Thirty-fifth street and Hooper avenue.

Roping contests by the experts from the greatest ranches of the world will be held, as well as numerous pony express races, between both men and women.

Exhibitions of bucking horse riding will be features daily at the Rodeo. Many horses noted for the fact that no one has been able to stay on their backs, have been shipped to Los Angeles. Noted cowgirls and cowboys will attempt to try the heretofore impossible feat.

GREAT ACHIEVEMENT

In other columns of this issue is published an account of the final taking over of the water systems for which bonds were voted eight months ago. The Evening News is of the opinion that the taking over by the city of these four water plants is the most important achievement ever attained in the history of Glendale.

There was some opposition to municipal ownership of water prior to the bond election last August, but since that time people of all factions have united and are now ready to co-operate in making the municipal ownership of water a great success.

WITT REFUSED NEW TRIAL

Glen Witt, convicted of the murder of W. M. Alexander in Los Angeles last December, has been refused a new trial, the supreme court affirming the judgment of Judge Willis. The court says that while Witt, himself, did not fire the fatal shot, he was engaged with Oxnam in the perpetration or attempt to perpetrate the burglary, and equally guilty with him. The statutes specifically provide that murder committed in the attempt to perpetrate robbery is murder in the first degree.

THE DOG QUESTION

The dog question is one that a newspaper man who is not a good sprinter, or else a good fighter, has no business to meddle with. The man or woman who has a pet dog will fight for the rights of that dog so long as any strength remains in him and long after all strength has departed from the dog, for a dead dog is more prized than a living one by many dog owners.

The Evening News editor always remains on the safe side when speaking on this subject. It is a serious question to consider, and the same advice may be given a person when in the neighborhood where there are many dogs as is posted at the exit of an underground auto road east of Monrovia. The notice reads "Watch and Pray."

Dogs have no business running at large where there are children. The average dog makes the rounds of alleys and vacant lots, unearths carcasses of decaying animals, and then in a few minutes places his nose against the face of a small child. There is nothing sanitary about this practice, and yet it is an everyday occurrence. Dogs have habits that should not be tolerated by a people who have any love for sanitary conditions.

KNOWLEDGE

That which is written between the covers of ponderous books is by no means the whole knowledge of the world. A fact is no less a fact because it concerns the wagging of a dog's tail, and not an important discovery in medical science. The one is a common thing open to the observation of everyone; the other a remote thing to be found at the center of a maze of scientific research. Both, however, are of the stuff that knowledge is made of, and in the every-day world, which presses upon men the necessity for earning food and shelter, one fact may be made to count as heavily as the other, for it is not the fact, but what is done with it that counts. A man with a head full of unused facts is merely an unwritten book. Until he brings these facts out into the light and makes some use of them, he cannot be said to possess knowledge. He does not need to give them to the world. Indeed, they may be of no interest whatever to the world. He should, however, use them in a process of thought. To know that a certain kind of dog is able to wag his tail a certain number of times is of little value by itself; to know that after a certain period of fasting, a certain kind of dog will, upon being tempted with a pork chop, wag his tail a certain number of times, is really to know something. The observer's brain has been put to work. It has drawn a conclusion from observation, and in so doing has gone through a mental process. The person who would go to the trouble of performing this experiment would doubtless be charged with eccentricity, yet in the study of animal psychology, experiments equally as absurd to the uninitiated are performed for scientific purposes by men with a reputation for unusual intellectual vigor. But academic sanction was not necessary to make animal psychology a branch of knowledge. It existed and had a capacity for imparting knowledge to the observer who chose to look long before it achieved the dignity of a name. The world is full of knowledge, and only a small portion of it has ever found expression in books. It is anybody's for the asking, and the person who claims that opportunity for acquiring knowledge is denied him is, nine times out of ten, seeking not knowledge, but an excuse for his indifference.—Alhambra Advocate.

GREAT FAMINES

The worst famines of modern times were the famine in Ireland in 1846-7, in which 1,000,000 people perished; the Indian famine in 1866, which claimed 1,450,000 victims; the Indian famine in 1877, in which 500,000 people perished, and the great famine in China in 1878, in which 9,500,000 died.

Why is it that most of the newspaper pictures of those women saddened by war show the ladies smiling?

The lecture on the kindergarten and its work by Miss Anna Jenkins of Pasadena, which was announced for Saturday, May 1 at the high school, has been indefinitely postponed.

MAKING A CONSTITUTION

Mary Harris Armor, who is the Richmond Pearson Hobson of Georgia, has been telling why men have no right to sell liquor, doubtless citing many reasons of highest excellence. However, when she says that such sale is forbidden by the constitution, since liquor makes a fool of a man, and the constitution says that no man has a right to make a fool of himself or of anybody else, one is conscious of an impulse to demur. No copy of the document is at hand, but memory harking back to school days recalls it fairly well, without, however, conjuring into recollection the particular clause that is used to serve the lady's purpose. The habit of quoting as from a certain source that which never was there, is not upheld by the best ethics, and Jim Ham Lewis is the only orator able to do it right along and get away with it. It would be pleasing to waive criticism in the case of Mrs. Armor, but politeness, dear to the heart, must be permitted to sidestep in deference to the truth. If all that people conceived themselves to have found in the constitution, really was there, it would expand to a volume, and be capable of sustaining any proposition ever entertained in the human mind.—Pasadena Star.

ALASKA'S FUTURE

The building of a government line in Alaska will be a unique experiment, such as could not have had any other part of United States territory as its setting. Much is expected to accrue to the benefit of Alaska and the people who will go there with the opening of new opportunity. There was a time when it appeared as though Alaska was bound to become the domain of promoters. Had private capital built such a line as is now contemplated, it would have ended by owning all that the line touched. It could have established and maintained monopolies of product and transportation, and judging by precedent, would have had no hesitancy in the essay. For the government to build and control a road there cannot well be viewed as the establishing of a precedent. It has nothing in common with such a scheme as the proposed purchase of the Western Pacific. It is not an indication that government ownership as a whole is being favored. The purpose of the Alaskan road will not be that of profiting by acting as a carrier, although of course, such is hoped to be an incidental result. The purpose is to open a vast domain otherwise practically closed, to lend to its resources the possibility of development, and to place them in touch with a market. In the absence of such a line much of the wealth of Alaska would lie dormant.—Long Beach Telegram.

It is reassuring to learn that Uncle Sam has a giant's power in his navy. And it is very pleasing to feel that this power is not to be abused.

Reports from San Francisco that wholesale scalping has prevailed there since the opening of the exposition may frighten some imaginative, timorous tenderfoot "back yonder" into the belief that California still is "wild and woolly," with bloodthirsty Indians roaming about collecting paleface scalps. Those bay city ticket-scalpers should be held responsible for any scaring of uncallous-footed persons away from the exposition.

A LAST WORD ON "POLLY OF THE CIRCUS"

Since we who played in "Polly of the Circus" have appropriately congratulated each other and glowed in modest self esteem to see our names emblazoned in that untrammeled institution, the American press, it is only fitting that we should acknowledge the industry and efficiency of an unseen member of the cast. And having paid the above compliment to your cult, Mr. Editor, I trust that you will grant me space as you have so generously done in times past.

Miss Eula Richardson is responsible in a large degree for whatever success has been achieved through the production of the Alumni play, financially as well as artistically. It was she who attended to all business arrangements, who was the go-between for the printing of programs and the necessary press matter, who secured the indispensible theatre props, who saw to the distribution of the advertising paraphernalia. And all credit is due her for this. It was her tact and diplomacy which, in a large measure, assured us of the splendid patronage of the people of the community. It was she who squandered gallons of gasoline in her automobile and days of untiring labor in behalf of the production and who received in return—much credit.

The play was the thing, all right, but the young lady who laid the plans and forged the chain which led across the footlights to its auditors was the entity which made its success a possibility.

THE WEATHER

Enough's enough and that's no bluff,
Too much of anything is plenty;
Great scads of rain give us a pain,
These nineteen days or twenty.

Let The Times grill a Progressive bill
For "reformers" we don't care a feather,
But what would suit is for some galoot
To wring the juice out of this weather.

The Lord will be as good to John Bunny's soul as John Bunny was good to his fellow-men in divorcing them from their cares by his funny antics.

CREATORE AT SAN DIEGO

SAN DIEGO, April 29.—Punching holes in the air with his long baton and his forefinger, reaching out dramatically as if emploring more rhythm, rushing from his music stand with hands extended in an attitude of pushing back the wave of music pulsating towards him from his forty-two reed and brass instruments, Giuseppe Creatore lived up to his reputation as an eccentric conductor when his famous band opened a two weeks' engagement at the San Diego exposition. At the opening concert the band played to 10,000 people.

At the conclusion of the opening number the spirited "Roma" march by Musse, the great crowd broke into cheers and Creatore and his band were forced to respond to an encore. This band is drawing big crowds to the exposition each afternoon and night and attendance records are promised to be shattered during the engagement, which will be terminated May 7. So eccentric is Creatore that he declares that during the engagement he will stand in the lofty tower of the California building and direct the band stationed on the Plaza de Panama far below.

There's so darned many things a fellow mustn't do if he wants to win success, that success hardly seems worth while.

The rarity of Christian charity that is done in secret is all the more interesting since folks have grown more and more inclined to allow things printed.

CHARGE NEGLECT Of THREE R's

Sacramento, Apr. 28.—Charging that frills and fads have replaced the time venerated three "R's" in the Los Angeles public schools, Senator Brown of that city led the fight in the Senate to day against the Maddux bill, which provides a separate classification for special teachers in the state schools. While the bill is statewide in its effects the debate which lasted most of the afternoon hinged about the vocational training and other extra courses which have been a feature of the Los Angeles city schools.

"I have a boy who is as bright as the average boy and he was frightfully deficient in the rudiments of his common school education," asserted Senator Brown. "He attended the Cambria school in Los Angeles until I came here for this legislative session. To the honor of the Sacramento school system, be it said, that since he has been going to school here he has been getting a good knowledge of the fundamentals, because they do not give all their time here to sewing and cooking and box-making and such frills.

Senator Ballard made a vigorous reply in defense of the Los Angeles school system, which he asserted is the peer of any in the United States. He asserted that the fads and frills referred to are in reality new outposts of human progress, that the fads of twenty years ago are included in the routine of to day just as in the course of human development the dreams of one age ago have always been the science of the next.

As the debate developed it hinged about the employment of 250 special teachers by Supt. Francis of Los Angeles. A vigorous feminine lobby supported by the regular public school teachers of the state opposed the Maddux bill. The special teachers have been getting $1400 a year while the regulars get but $1200. In a recent decision Judge Hewitt of Los Angeles held that the specials must be classed as assistant teachers. Under the present state law an assistant can not be paid higher wages than a first grade teacher. Naturally, the specials and their friends favor the Maddux bill, which takes them out of the Hewitt classification.

In opposing the Maddux bill, Senator Wolfe of San Francisco waved three telegrams from members of the Board of Education in Los Angeles asking him to fight the measure. This created some surprise until a southern senator explained that there are seven members of the Los Angeles Board of Education and that four of them are in favor of the bill.

For about half an hour the debate took very much the appearance of washing the soiled linen on the Los Angeles school board on the floor of the senate. The regular teachers of San Francisco had that delegation lined solidly against the bill but when the vote was taken the Maddux act carried with three votes to spare. Senator Wolfe gave notice of reconsideration and a filibuster is now expected to attempt to hold the measure back until adjournment. It has not yet passed the assembly.

By a coincidence the senate passed tonight a school bill by Strobridge, which he declared was intended "to cut out the fads and teach the children the three R's." It requires three-fourths of the time in the first six grades to be devoted to reading, writing arithmetic, composition and the solid rudiments.—L. A. Times.

THE MISSION PLAY

The Mission Play begins its fourteenth week of its great exposition year run on Sunday with an attendance record for the season that betters the 75,000 mark.

The most notable change of the last week in the wonderful pageant drama of California has been made in the last act. The poet-author, John S. McGroarty, has re-written it. For a week the new version has been produced. The effect has been praiseworthy and puts the last act on the same high plane with the first two acts.

The Mission Play's birthday was Thursday. It was three years old. Many of those who were in attendance at the first performance came to see the production again. Some had not seen the Mission Play since its first appearance. They were surprised beyond belief. They said that they could not conceive of such a change as possible of being made in any drama.

Among the distinguished visitors at the Mission Play this week were the visiting delegates of the B'nai Brith, 150 strong. They were accompanied by many friends from Los Angeles. They were delighted with the pageant drama.
